

MARCH 2018: A GATHERING OF WOMEN

By Tanya Lopez, Regional Disciples Women Ministry Staff

Our Voice, Our Story, Our Connection

Women's Ministries across our churches are all different. Women gather for justice work and mission, they gather for education and spiritual development, they gather for community and support around issues that affect them and others do not formally gather, but give and are active in the many ministries of the Local, Regional, and General church!

Each woman has a story and voice that is unique and needed in the church. There are many spaces and places where women are still not fully welcomed or recognized in the world. Our faith and the example Jesus gives us allows us to see the importance, relevance and need for spaces and opportunities to gather as women. Spaces that are safe, that are inclusive that empower women to live fully into their call and connect to the wider mission of the church: to bring wholeness and healing to a fragmented world.

Why are women's events like the WWOW Interregional Event important and relevant to all women?

Through events like these women:

- are given access to leadership training and development through other women leaders
- can participate in mission and service opportunities that transform and widen our understanding of the world and its needs
- gather to worship and develop their spiritual connections to the divine in a variety of ways that meets the specific needs and issues that women face today
- are connected to a wider global sisterhood and are supported by and become agents of support for women around the world
- women are dignified and empowered to change their corner of the world by owning their passions, connecting to their faith in dynamic ways, and going out to actively living our their call.

Women of all ages need events like WWOW for these reasons and many more!

-Women lift up other women!

-Women build new communities!

-Women share and develop practical skills to connect their faith to the real world!

I cannot stress enough how excited I am for WWOW and I hope you are too!

The Regional Disciples Women will be allocating funds for scholarships for women who need it.

We are also providing scholarships specifically for young women (youth and young adult women) to come, learn and connect to Disciples Women Ministries! *Scholarship applications will first serve basis and will be announced on this page soon
